

Leading research and enterprise

Let us know what you think

Today you will have heard the Leadership Foundation's Chief Executive Ewart Wooldridge refer to our emerging ideas on leadership development for future heads of research and enterprise services. We already work with a range of other professional groups in collaborative design and delivery of leadership development and have opened dialogue with ARMA, PraxisUnico and AURIL amongst others. At this stage in the process we are still very much in listening mode and would like to hear from practising managers and leaders in research and enterprise on your leadership development needs.

Our current thinking is around short, topical, modular leadership development responsive to today's complex contexts and complementary to domain-specific professional development and emerging academic programmes in the field. Your ideas and feedback will help us to develop our thinking and engage further with your professional associations to provide leadership development that meets your professional needs.

Contact us:

- Email: lesly.huxley@lfhe.ac.uk or info@lfhe.ac.uk
- Twitter: @LFHEMarketing
- Visit our website: www.lfhe.ac.uk

Thank you for taking the time to let us know your thoughts. We shall be in touch to keep you update on details of new leadership development for research and enterprise as it progresses.

Leadership Foundation for Higher Education.